Section 7: Citizen Science

C1 C1

Citizen science is a broad term that covers many types of activities. Citizen science involves members of the public who are not professional scientists helping to carry out or leading scientific activities. Examples of citizen science could be people collecting air or water samples to test for pollution; people watching birds and telling researchers what they see; or ordinary people making scientific tools on their own to measure the world around them. How familiar are you with the concept of citizen science?

1 Extremely familiar

2 Moderately familiar

3 Somewhat familiar

4 Slightly familiar

5 Not at all familiar

C2 C2

What type of citizen science have you engaged in? Check all that apply. If you have not engaged in citizen science please indicate that as well.

1 I have collected data for a research project run by professional scientists.

2 I have carried out research in partnership with professional scientists.

- 3 I have led or carried out research without help from professional scientists.
- 4 I have participated in do-it-yourself activities such as making scientific tools.
- 5 I am a professional scientist and I have engaged with citizen scientists.
